Nutter, city GOP face big election

► All Council seats on ballot, including deep Republican field ► Nutter wants four more years to put his stamp on city ► Challengers say time is up

Four years ago as Mayor-elect Michael Nutter got ready to take office, his focus was squarely on crime, education, ethics reform and rolling back the city's onerous tax structure.

A few months later, the bottom fell out of the economy and most of his time was spent pulling the city out of a financial hole and recreating jobs that suddenly vanished. Along the way, he admits he made some missteps, such as trying to shutter city libraries, but has mainly stuck to his campaign priorities.

"Obviously the recession did have an impact, but it didn't stop us from doing the things we said we were going to do," Nutter said. "The reality is that we didn't change the original plan."

Nutter is a huge favorite in tomorrow's election against political newcomers Karen Brown, a former Democrat running as a Republican, and Independent hopeful Wali "Diop" Rahman. While the Wharton grad isn't overly confident of his re-election, he's clearly looking ahead to chapter two of his mayoral story.

"I'm tremendously optimistic about the future of this city," he said. "I love this city, I love these people. I'm hopeful that the voters can give me this second opportunity to continue to serve as mayor of the city of Philadelphia."

► Nutter, a huge favorite tomorrow, has faced unrest among base constituents in his first term.

To some, Nutter has restored integrity in City Hall.

Quoted

"He's done a good job in terms of restoring the public confidence in the systems of government," said political consultant Larry Ceisler. "By and large, the residents feel the city is operating in an honest manner."

Brown seeks more than GOP support

Nutter's primary challenger, former catholic school teacher Karen Brown, who joined the city GOP earlier this year, is also quick to point out that the 'R' besides her name in tomorrow's election is unimportant.

"To those Democrats, and Independents and Green Party members, don't be afraid to vote for something other than your party because truly party hasn't done anything for you," Brown, 52, said. "It's not about the party, it's about the person."

Brown said she would partially relieve the burden on small businesses by eliminating private trash collection fees and push to abolish the School Reform Commission for an elected school board to oversee the Philadelphia School District.

Woman hurt in fall from window

PORT RICHMOND.

Authorities are trying to figure out how a woman fell from her second-story window and became trapped in her backyard early yesterday morning.

Neighbors heard cries for help around 3 a.m. on the 2800 block of Jasper Street, where medics found the victim, 69, stuck behind a fence blocking her yard. They cut a hole and removed her.

The woman was taken to Temple University Hospital in stable condition with face, leg and arm injuries. ● METRO/AW

Mystery in Schuylkill River death

UNIVERSITY CITY. A man died Saturday night after plunging into the Schuylkill River.

Police and the Marine Unit pulled the man, an unidentified white male approximately 40 years of age, from the water shortly after he was seen in the river near Chestnut Street and Schuylkill Avenue at 6:37 p.m. Authorities estimate that he was only in the river for five to 10 minutes.

The man was taken to the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania, where he was pronounced dead at 7:19 p.m. His identity has not yet been released.

The circumstances of his death are unclear.

It's love at first tent for Occupy Philly pair

The honeymoon?

Hill and Nauss' Occupy encampment wedding was anything but traditional, and they plan to kick off their marriage in a similar fashion.

For their honeymoon, the two passionate activists will naturally be touring other Occupy camps.

"We're looking at Boston, Wall Street, Baltimore, D.C., and definitely Norristown — that's where Adam's from," Nauss said. "We're going to visit wherever we can on the East Coast."

Onlookers cheered as the couple exchanged vows and wedding bands before the obligatory first kiss.

► Wedding celebration highlights month anniversary of encampment ► Couple met at Dilworth Plaza tent

Occupy Philly members Alicia Nauss, 24, and Adam Hill, 27, who met while staffing the camp's information tent, were married yesterday in a ceremony at the lower level of Dilworth Plaza.

"We've both been here since day one," said Nauss. "I think being in a situation where you're with someone 24/7 does progress a relationship faster than a traditional setting, but I wouldn't have it any other way."

Nauss wore a gown given to her by a friend and carried flowers donated by a wholesale company that gives supplies to the food tent. Occupiers also prepared food and baked a wedding cake. "We're not asking a lot," Nauss said.

"We're not asking a lot. We're just calling on the community to support us and our movement."

"We're just calling on the community to support us and the movement."

The ceremony was officiated by Baptist Minister and fellow Occupier Michael Pierce, who wore a cowboy hat and sunglasses. The bride processed down the steps of Dilworth Plaza unaccompanied, as her family was in Virginia and unable to attend. "They're 100 percent supportive and I know Adam's family is too," Nauss said. Hill's two brothers served as his best men.

Background

Tot's history

Toys for Tots started in 1947, when a group of U.S. Marine reservists got together and cleaned up small toys and gave them away to needy families. Now it's one of the biggest nonprofits in the nation.

Toys for Tots works by giving away the toys they collect to other nonprofits in the greater Philadelphia region.

Last year they got 600 requests from charities to receive toys and have drop-off boxes set up throughout the city.

Dear readers, let's give together

Quoted

"Toys for Tots is run by the Marines across the country. We [here] distribute to parts of Philadelphia and all of Delaware County."

MARINE STAFF SGT. RICKY WILSON, LOCAL COORDINATOR FOR TOYS FOR TOTS

After last year's success of Metro's first-ever holiday toy drive — called Metro Magic — at our New York City office, those of us in our newspaper company's Philadelphia and Boston offices wanted in.

Is there a better way to spread some holiday cheer than to give a gift to a little kid who otherwise wouldn't get one for Christmas?

So, one week into Metro Philadelphia's first toy drive, we're calling out again for everyone who can to go to www.metro.us, click on the Metro Magic logo on the top left and donate a gift to a needy child in the Philadelphia area. With the help of Toys R Us and through the Toys for Tots program run by local chapters of the Marine Corps, Metro will amass the toys at our Center City office and have Marines from their Folsom offices come collect them next month.

We'll be sure to take some photos of Staff Sgt. Ricky Wilson — who runs the Folsom chapter's Toys for Tots program that delivers toys to Delaware County and Philadelphia children — and his fellow Marines when we have the awesome chance to hand over your gifts.

We promise to give a heartfelt "thanks" to the Marines from all you charitable souls and dedicated Metro readers out there.

Will harassment scandal be the mark of Cain?

► The out-of-nowhere GOP presidential front-runner is down in the polls following decade-old allegations of harassment ► Rival Ron Paul thinks it's no big deal

Allegations that Republican presidential candidate Herman Cain sexually harassed women in the 1990s have begun to damage his bid for the White House, a Reuters-Ipsos poll found.

The poll showed the percentage of Republicans who view Cain favorably dropped 9 percentage points, to 57 percent from 66 percent a week ago.

Among all registered voters, Cain's favorability declined 5 percentage points, to 32 percent from 37 percent.

The survey represents the first evidence that sexual harassment claims dating from Cain's time as head of the National Restaurant Association have taken a toll on his presidential campaign.

A majority of respon-

Not important?

Republican presidential candidate Ron Paul said on "Fox News Sunday" that the media went too far in covering the allegations, distracting voters.

► "The media blew this way out of proportion," Paul said. "There are a thousand stories out there and I think that dilutes the real debates."

dents, 53 percent, believe sexual harassment allegations against Cain are true despite his denials. Republicans were less likely to believe they are true, with 39 percent thinking they are accurate.

"The most striking thing is that Herman Cain is actually seeing a fairly substantial decline in favorability ratings toward him particularly among Republicans," said Ipsos pollster Chris Jackson.

The 65-year-old Cain, a former pizza company executive with no experience in political office, has been running neck and neck with former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney for the lead in polls of Republicans considering who will be the nominee to face Democratic President Barack Obama next year.

At least three women have accused Cain of sexual harassment from his time as the restaurant industry's top lobbyist. Cain has given conflicting accounts of the cases but insists the claims were baseless. REUTERS

Top general: Be open on Internet war

WASHINGTON. The United States should be more open about its development of offensive cyber weapons and spell out when it will use them as it grapples with an increasing barrage of attacks by foreign hackers, the former No. 2 uniformed officer in the U.S. military said.

"We've got to step up the game; we've got to talk about our offensive capabilities and train to them; to make them credible so that people know there's a penalty to this," said James Cartwright, the four-star Marine Corps general.

Baghdad bombed

BAGHDAD. At least 10 people were killed when three bomb blasts rocked a busy market in Iraq's capital yesterday where people were shopping for the Muslim festival of Eid al-Adha, police sources said.

The blasts occurred in Shurja, an important commercial district in central Baghdad where shop owners and

Syria kills protesters

AMMAN. Syrian forces shot dead at least 13 civilians yesterday in a continued military assault on the restive city of Homs and in attacks on pro-democracy demonstrations that erupted after prayers marking the main Muslim feast, activists said.

Arab leaders have ramped up criticism of President Bashar al-Assad as the killings mounted, but are shied from demanding major political change in the country for fear chaos could ensue, given Syria's volatile sectarian divisions. Syria is dominated by Assad's minority Alawite sect while Sunni Muslims form the majority. REUTERS

Joe Frazier now fighting 'very serious' liver cancer

Frazier

- ▶ Famous boxer faces perhaps his toughest match yet
- ▶ Manager says it's 'painful' but 'Joe doesn't give up'

Former heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, who earned boxing immortality after three epic fights with Muhammad Ali, is in hospice care with liver cancer, his manager said at the weekend.

"Smokin' Joe" Frazier, 67, was diagnosed with liver cancer about a month ago after meeting with more than one doctor and is now in hospice care in Philadelphia, his business and personal manager of seven years, Leslie Wolff, told Reuters.

"We are doing everything we can ... but I would be a liar if I did not tell you it is very serious," Wolff said.

Famous loss

Frazier lost his third fight against Ali on Oct. 1, 1975, in a fabled encounter known as "The Thrilla in Manila" when Frazier's cornerman Eddie Futch stopped the fight while Frazier fumed in the ring corner with one of his eyes swollen shut. Frazier never forgave Futch.

Wolff said Frazier, who won the Olympic heavyweight boxing gold medal for the United States in 1964 in Tokyo and held the world heavyweight boxing crown from 1970 to 1973, was in a "very painful and serious situation".

But Wolff added: "Joe is a fighter. Joe doesn't give up."

Doctors are still exploring various medical options for Frazier, who has 11 children.

Frazier is eternally linked with Ali thanks to their trilogy of fights in the 1970s which rank among the most famous ever in the sport. Frazier won the first and Ali took the next two.

Frazier won the world heavyweight title in 1970, knocking out champion Jimmy Ellis, after Ali had been stripped of the championship in 1967 for refusing to fight in the Vietnam War due to his Muslim beliefs. REUTERS

Snooki laughing all the way to the bank

This gossip columnist is guilty of saying a few negative things about the force of nature that is Nicole "Snooki" Polizzi. And I'm not the only one.

"People are very, very rude to me. I'm probably one of the biggest celebrities who is bullied by people. The thing is, it doesn't get to me. In high school, I got bullied so bad that now I am such a strong person," the pint-sized star told Metro while promoting her new perfume "Snooki by Nicole Polizzi," which will debut on Nov. 25. "When people do talk about me, at least they are talking about me, you know? It's not really a big deal to me."

But one thing you can't make fun of her for? Her weight — girlfriend looks fantastic. Her secret? She stopped what got her famous in the first place. "I stopped drinking," she claims. "I hardly drink when we're not filming the show, so that helped a lot. Just eating right, grilled chicken, spinach, broccoli, lots of green tea and working out."

Her perfume is just one of the many products being branded by Snooki. She also has three books out, a self tanner, and a new mobile app called Snookify, and she's coming out with a new set of fake eyelashes next year.

From being bullied to selling her own brand of fake eyelashes. Is this a great country or what?

Here's the woman causing the Bieber drama

It looks like Mariah Yeater, the woman claiming to be Justin Bieber's baby mama, has a rap sheet. Above is a booking photo, taken last year on Dec. 21 in Las Vegas, when she was arrested for battery domestic violence, injury/destroying property and threatening telephone calls. The reason for the hubbub? Apparently, Yeater showed up at an old boyfriend's home, claiming he knocked her up (it is assumed it is the same baby that she later claimed Bieber fathered). A fight broke out, Yeater assaulted the guy, and she was arrested, according to TMZ.com.

This doesn't mean that Yeater isn't telling the truth about Bieber, but it certainly puts a dent in her credibility. There is no word on when the paternity test is scheduled, but maybe instead of blood work, they should just see if that baby can dance like Usher? That should settle things.

Lohan delays jail stint for Playboy

Lindsay Lohan was reportedly granted permission to delay her next jail stint by a week so she could finish up her work posing for Playboy magazine — which is good because the people at Playboy weren't happy with the first set of photos, according to Radar Online. "Lindsay was told that the Playboy executives wanted to go another direction with her shoot so they asked her to come back for a second time," a source says. "The first pictures of Lindsay weren't exactly what they wanted so they have a new theme that they want to shoot." Lohan will reportedly pose again this week starting Tuesday, and she's scheduled to grace the cover of the magazine's January issue.

A koala, a few singing legends and an early kickoff to Christmas

1. Well, if this picture doesn't get you through a Monday morning, I don't know what will. Susan Boyle (plus koala) posed during a visit to Wild Life Sydney on Sunday in Sydney, Australia.

2. Hot mama Jennifer Garner attended The Hollywood

Reporter's annual Next Generation Reception held at Milk Studios on Saturday in Los Angeles.

3. Chaka Khan performed at the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame tribute concert honoring Aretha Franklin on Saturday in Cleveland, Ohio.

4. Janet Jackson performed live on stage at the Sydney Opera House on Saturday in Sydney, Australia.

5. Nick Cannon taped a segment for the 2011 Disney Parks Christmas Day Parade at Disneyland on Saturday. The show airs Christmas Day on ABC.

6. At Odyssey Arena on Saturday in Belfast, Northern Ireland, Selena Gomez attended a press conference for the MTV Europe Music Awards 2011, which she's hosting.

7. Christy Turlington Burns eats carbs? Here she is at a pre-marathon pasta dinner at The National on Friday in New York City. She ran the marathon to raise awareness for her maternal health charity.

Felicity Jones bares all

► The 'Like Crazy' star on the film's heavily improvised, nonstop filming and how it changed her approach to acting ► What the British actress does to decompress after work

British actress Felicity Jones makes a name for herself with "Like Crazy," a lyrical portrayal of a young couple (Jones and Anton Yelchin) dealing with the harsh realities of romance at odds with the practical world. It's a bold, emotionally honest performance, and one Jones had to maintain throughout shooting. The heavily improvised film was shot nearly round-the-clock, with the two leads never knowing what exactly would make it on screen. An odd working experience, to be sure, but one Jones says changed her life.

You were pretty much in character constantly during the shooting of this movie. How was that?

You just have to live and breathe it for the time that you're making the movie, so you don't have the mind-space to think about anything else but that. We were all at a point in our lives where we wanted and were able to just completely immerse ourselves in this project. We just spent every minute of the day with each other. It became this rather intimate triumvirate with Drake, Anton and I.

How has your approach to other projects changed after working this way?

I found after "Like Crazy," it was a revolution in many ways, in that all the ideas I'd had about acting and about performance were completely changed. And after "Like Crazy," I felt this incredible calmness that I'd never had before. As an actor, because you don't have control over the whole product, you become quite the perfectionist. But after "Like Crazy" I suddenly just felt more relaxed about letting things be, and that the whole ethos of improvisation is that interesting creative things will happen if you relax. I took that mantra with me. I think every few years there's a job that completely changes every-► Felicity Jones poses on the set of "Like Crazy," now in select theaters.

How do you decompress from making a film like this?

Um ... lots of alcohol. (laughs) Don't put that in. Just reading and watching movies, and moving very little from the couch to the kitchen is the main thing.

thing, and "Like Crazy" was one of those jobs.

The film skips over a lot of the bigger, more traditional movie moments for a romance.

What's interesting is — because we shot so much footage and the takes are so long — is that you just keep going until you find something interesting. You can be filming 40-minute takes and things like that. It was really unclear where the story would go, and actually things that were in the outline that were in the original script didn't end up in the final film.

That summer courtship montage does go by incredibly fast.

Exactly, exactly. But in a way I think that's what makes it so powerful, because as an audience you feel like, "I want more of that!" Which is how they feel.

Recent grads: Land your dream job

I'm not going to go on and on about the bad economy, because you're sick of hearing about it. Instead, let's focus on how to get a job in your field instead of settling for a random position at a company you don't want to work for.

A new millennial career study conducted by American Express and Harris Interactive shows that nearly 70 percent of recent grads are either not working or working at a job that's not in their field of study.

You shouldn't settle for a job that just pays your bills — it will be almost impossible to succeed at a job that isn't aligned to your passions, strengths and personality. Here are some techniques that you can use to get your dream job in any economy:

Brand yourself online to attract the right opportunities

Job searching in today's world is less about submitting résumés to job boards and corporate websites and more about being found online. That's why you need to be active on social networking sites and have your own website. Employers are searching for you or people with your skills.

Make job searching a full-time job

The more effort you put into anything, the more you will get in return, as long as you work smart. If you only spend a few hours per week searching for a job, it will be hard to compete in this marketplace.

Treat your life like a networking event

Recognize that any person you meet can change your life and help you get your target job. Whether you're on a train or at an event, there are people there that can either hire you or refer to the right job.

Have a positive attitude

If you apply for jobs just for a paycheck, your body language and verbal communication will show that. This is why you need to focus on your passion. You need to exhibit that energy and glow that makes people want to work with you.

your inner genius

It doesn't require any superhuman abilities, says Gina Rudan, author of 'Practical Genius'
The five steps to turn you into an office rock star Plus, six things that hinder your progress

1 Identify your genius: "Take time to do a self-diagnosis of the six ingredients that I argue contribute to genius: values, passion, creative abilities, strength, skills and expertise. Think, 'in my own life, what are my values, creative abilities and passions?' I consider those to be a person's soft personal assets. People have been conditioned to focus on their professional identity, so they don't really think about their values. Then I ask them to think about their professional hard assets, which are strengths, skills and expertise. When I ask people to tell me their strengths, a lot of people know because this is what they are measured against in their performance evaluations. The

"It's between the heart and the mind, between what you love and what you are good at."

RUDAN ON WHERE GENIUS RESIDES

2 Surround yourself with genius

"Look at who you are spending your time with. Sometimes, you have to remove people. That is the hard reality."

next challenge is to identify where the soft and the hard intersect. That, to me, is where genius resides: It's between the heart and the mind, between what you love and what you are good at. A lot of us check half of ourselves at the revolving doors of our offices — we can no longer do that if we want to be competitive, innovative. You think only the logic, strategic and professional side of who you are matters at work, but that is no longer the case. The whole self matters."

3 Express your genius: "'Express' is about telling your true story. Check out your résumé. Is it showing the whole picture, or just half of who you are? If you have a blog, are you truly expressing all sides of yourself? Most of us only express one side of who we are: Moms tell mom stories. Lawyers tell lawyer stories. Doctors tell doctor stories. Expressing genius is about really sharing the full story of who you are, and learning how to play with the tools available for effective storytelling. We are living in a communications-on-steroids environment, so expression today really matters, online and offline."

4 Sustain your genius: "This is about paying attention to what you eat, exercising and feeling the body. This is a lifestyle proposition. A lot of people know what they should be doing to stay healthy, but not a lot of people make the connection that if you don't take care of your body and mind, you are losing competitive advantage."

5 Market your genius: "Everyone has this bittersweet opposing force within them, which I call a 'paradox.' Everyone should market their paradox. A lot of us try to conform and be one way, or be what our organization wants us to be. That's not appealing. You need to out your difference, and that means that if you play in a band and you are a CEO, you need share that. If you are a lawyer who is also a former graffiti artist, well, that's fascinating. People care about how different you are, how unique you are."

What impedes genius?

- Lack of sleep
- Conformity
- Routine
- Surrounding yourself with the wrong people
- Eating poorly
- Not finding time to unwind

Genius generators

Rudan recommends finding the following types of people to help you bring out your full potential.

- Yodas: Your mentors
- Ambassadors: "Connectors," she says. "People who are going to introduce you to others and be your cheerleader."
- Fat brains: People under 30. "They are brilliant. I think that a 'fat brain' should sit on every corporate board. Multigenerational relationships work."

Jobs in health care administration promising in 2012

► The field will see an average salary increase of 3.4 percent next year, says report ► New legislation details

There's no such thing as a recession-proof job. But health care, specifically on the administration end, is looking increasingly secure. A recent survey released by staffing and job-search service, Robert Half International projects an average increase of 3.4 percent in salary next year for positions such as third-party billers, with some jobs seeing salary bumps of more than 8 percent.

Quoted

"Health care reform is primarily a collection of pilot programs, preventative health care services and forward-thinking research."

CRAIG B. GARNER

What exactly defines an administrative position in health care? "Anything that doesn't touch a patient," explains Daryl Pigat, a market manager at Robert Half. This includes medical billing managerial and support roles, insurance claims analysts, health care claims processors and even customer service positions.

New health care legislation is partly responsible for the increased openings

Small-business employment falls again in October

Small businesses shed employees for a fifth straight month in October, but the pace of layoffs moderated, a survey showed on Thursday.

The National Federation of Independent Business said employment fell by an average of 0.1 per firm from 0.3 in September, according to its survey of 2,077 small businesses.

The persistently weak U.S. labor market has been in sharp focus as a key issue holding back the economic recovery.

The NFIB survey showed 12 percent of small-business owners added an average of 3.2 workers over the past few months, while 11 percent reduced employment by an average of 3.6 workers, an improvement from September.

The remaining 77 percent of owners made no net change in employment, with just under a third reporting few or no qualified applicants for positions. REUTERS

Is the 'Freshman 15' just a myth?

► College students do gain some weight, but it's far less than popularly believed, shows a new study

The idea that college freshmen gain an average of 15 pounds in their first year of school is simply untrue, the co-author of a new study said last week. In fact, the average is really between 2.4 pounds for women and 3.4 pounds for men.

"Not only is there not a 'Freshman 15,' there doesn't appear to be even a 'College 15,'" says Jay Zagorsky, research scientist at Ohio State University's Center for Human Resource Research and co-author of a study on college weight gain.

WWW.METRO.US/EDUCATION

No more than 10 percent of all college freshmen gained 15 pounds or more — and a quarter of freshmen reported losing weight during their first year.

The results show that college students gain weight steadily during their college years, with women gaining on average seven to nine pounds, and men between 12 and 13 pounds.

Zagorsky says that most of us do gain weight as we get older, and "it is not college that leads to weight gain — it is becoming a young adult."

The study, conducted with the University of Michigan Dearborn, used information from a study of more than 7,000 people nationwide. The National Longitudinal Survey of Youth 1997 interviewed people between the ages of 13 and 17 in 1997 and continues to interview the same people each year since then. REUTERS

What they considered:

A variety of factors thought to be associated with freshman weight gain were considered, including living in a dormitory, going to school full or part time, pursuing a two-year or four-year degree and heavy alcohol drinking (the consumption of six or more drinks on at least four days per month).

What made a significant difference in weight gain was heavy drinking. Heavy drinkers gained less than a pound more than students who did not drink.

► The researchers also examined what happened to the students' weight after graduation and found they typically gained another 1.5 pounds a year in the first four years after college.

Just try not paying taxes

RE: "TAX STUDY: BIG FIRMS DON'T PAY": If I, like 30 American corporations, even attempted to not pay federal income taxes I would be in federal prison faster than a Republican could vote down a tax increase. The double standard is truly killing America. Companies are sitting on trillions of dollars and the GOP wants to cut benefits to the old and sick, who have not only paid for but earned those benefits.

ANTONIO BENJAMIN, VIA E-MAIL

Under the current tax system there is no incentive for corporations to pay taxes and every incentive for them to avoid them. Perhaps corporations who do pay taxes ought to be rewarded — they could be given votes for every state in which they actually pay tax. WALTER ZIOBRO, VIA E-MAIL

OWS, Tea Party on right track

Government deserves a lot of blame for refusing to protect the free market by enforcing the antitrust laws and pleasing Wall Street by allowing mega ultra global conglomerate oligopolies to become the norm in America. The other half of the blame resides with the traitors on Wall Street who bet against America and purposely tanked not only business but the entire economy for their own gain while with their other hands they took billions in taxpayer money which they then ruthlessly used to bankrupt and destroy any small business they could. Time for Americans to wake up and realize that the free markets have been gone for a long time and American business no longer operates by capitalism.

Horoscope

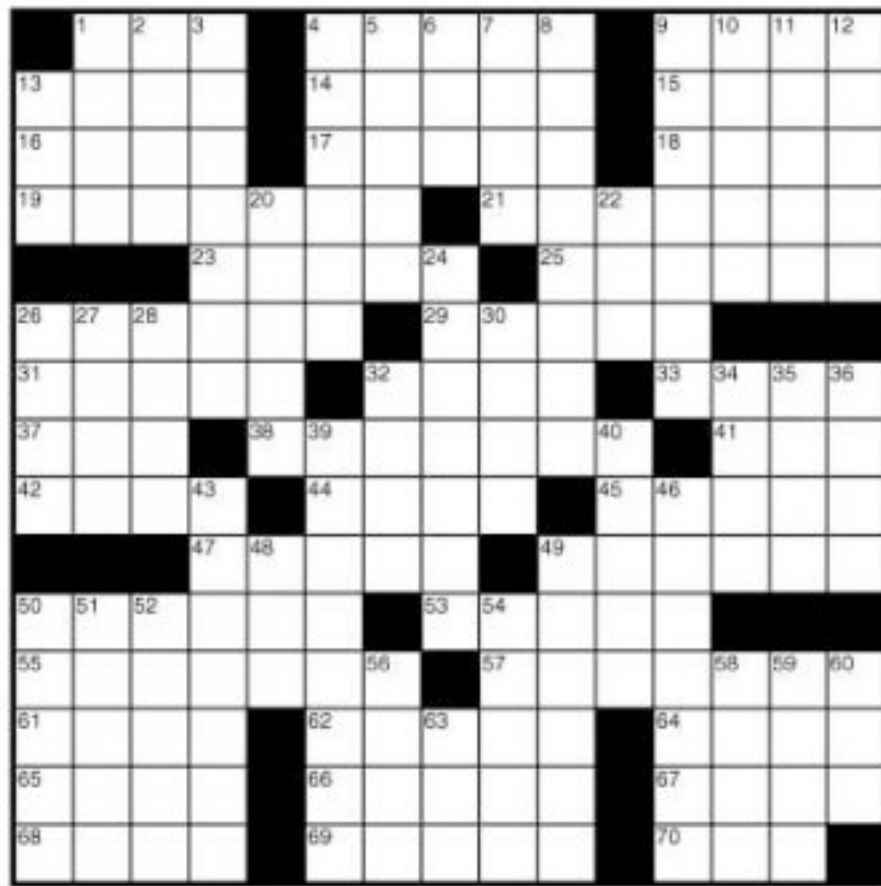

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Instead of pushing for something you think you want, let life happen. You're likely to have the most fun just hanging around with good friends.
♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Even if others don't understand what you're doing, because of the successes you've had in the past, the general consensus is likely to be supportive.
♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. If you're prepared to give a lot in order to get a little, your probabilities for accumulation will be much greater than usual. You'll be surprised at how quickly your returns will add up.
♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Someone might have to remind you to take adequate time to reach a decision regarding important issues. If you rush your thinking, some important facts will not be considered.
♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Unless you can tell the difference between someone who is trying to help you get a better deal and another who is hoping to take advantage, you might believe the best sales pitch.
♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Don't be judge, jury and prosecutor when engaged in a group endeavor. It's OK to voice your opinion, but let others have the last word.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Instead of endlessly finding fault with family members who think differently than you, help them see things in another light and then let them decide how to change their ways.
♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. If you do nothing but help youngsters find their own way in life, you'll accomplish a great deal. Providing wise counsel to those who need it is one of the best services you can offer.
♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. Be grateful for any kind of returns you can put on the plus side of the ledger. Not all objectives are achievable, but, many times, substitutes can be found that'll serve the purpose.
♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Instead of wallowing in despair, focus on the problem at hand and you'll find measures that can be taken to rectify what you thought was a bum deal. Don't settle for a loss.
♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. No matter how juicy the news, keep the confidence that another placed in you when they told you something that is not for other people's ears.
♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Most of the time it is those very things that cost nothing that bring us the greatest pleasure in life. It's likely to be one of those days when this is apt to be the case. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Stuck in the middle with Jamar Chaney

► Eagles MIKE linebacker putting his stamp on defense ► Seventh-round pick developing into true leader ► Team finally stopping the run after early struggles ► Bring on Matt Forte

After being gashed for 292 yards in the first two weeks of the season, the Eagles knew they had to make a change.

A drastic one.

So defensive coordinator Juan Castillo tweaked his depth chart and moved Jamar Chaney to his old spot, at middle linebacker.

It took some time — the defense surrendered 409 yards on the ground in the three games after the switch — but it's finally paying off. Chaney's voice in the locker room and his leadership in the huddle have helped turn the corner for a once-struggling linebacking corps.

"We're not under heat no more? I didn't know," said strongside linebacker Moise Fokou, while laughing. "We knew things had to break sooner or later, we just been working hard week in and week out, and trying to get better."

Fokou, along with weak-side backer Brian Rolle, have found some continuity and teams are finding it hard to find running lanes against them. Credit Chaney for a large part of that. In the huddle, he's not afraid to get in people's faces and bang helmets when assignments are missed or when gaps aren't filled.

► Chaney's move back to middle linebacker was a turning point for the Eagles' defense.

"You'll see him stomp his foot, yell, or grab somebody's facemask and say, 'Listen up'. It's kind of exciting to see him take ownership of the defense and really take control of the MIKE linebacker position,"

Quoted

"I like the middle ... When you go out on that field, you have to make sure you can hold up your part and make sure that you know what you're doing."

JAMAR CHANEY

Fokou said.

Chaney's emergence is a bit of a surprise, since he was an unheralded seventh-round draft pick out of Mississippi State. But the 25-year-old has all the intangibles and he's thriving in his new role.

"I like the middle," Chaney said. "On most teams, the MIKE is the signal caller and leader on defense. A lot of stuff gets put on the MIKE, and I like when that is put on me."

3 THINGS TO WATCH

Bears at Eagles, tonight (8:30) at Lincoln Financial Field
TV: ESPN, Radio: 94.1 FM
Keys to the game:

1 Stop Matt Forte.

Everything the Bears do starts and ends with Forte.

He's the NFL's leader in yards from scrimmage, with 1,091, and accounts for almost 50 percent of the team's offense. Plus, Forte is playing with an edge as he lobbies for a new contract.

The Eagles' run defense is coming off its two best games, but they'll have to take it to another level to stop a back several Eagles called the NFL's best.

2 Keep it Shady.

Andy Reid insists he hasn't changed his pass-first philosophy.

Still, it's hard to ignore the fact that he's handed the ball to LeSean McCoy 58 times in the past two weeks. The shifty back has emerged as a national sensation, with his speed and cut-on-a-dime moves.

The Eagles enter with the NFL's No. 1 rushing attack (179.9 yards a game) against the 12th-best rush defense (108.7 a game).

3 Sack Town.

Bears QB Jay Cutler has spent the majority of this season on his back.

The Bears' O-line has allowed 21 sacks this season — and an NFL-worst 56 in 2010 — with Cutler under duress 28.9 percent of the time, according to ESPN. Meanwhile, the Eagles rank sixth in the NFL, with 22 sacks.

This could turn into a feeding frenzy for Jason Babin (nine sacks) and Trent Cole (four).

Penn St. campus rocked by sex scandal, coverup

► Former coach arrested, charged with child sex abuse ► Administrators accused of perjury ► Sandusky banned from campus amid allegations

Penn State's football program enjoyed a bye this past weekend.

For administrators, however, the weekend was anything but peaceful.

On Saturday, allegations that a former coach sexually abused eight boys rocked Happy Valley. Retired defensive coordinator Jerry Sandusky was arrested and released on $100,000 bail after being arraigned on 40 criminal counts. He has since been banned from campus.

But the plot thickened.

Penn State athletic director Tim Curley and administrator Gary Schultz are accused of perjury for failing to report Sandusky's transgressions. The two reportedly saw Sandusky assault a boy in a shower at the team's practice facility and didn't report it. The two men claim they are innocent, while the university said it will cover their legal fees.

Longtime head coach Joe Paterno, who has the most wins in Division I football history, isn't being charged with any crimes or accused of any wrongdoing. Sandusky was once considered a candidate to replace Paterno, if the coach were to step down.

"This is a case about a sexual predator who used his position within the university and community to repeatedly prey on young boys," state Attorney General Linda Kelly said.

Twelfth-ranked Penn State (8-1) hosts No. 19 Nebraska this weekend in Happy Valley.

► Thome is back with the Phillies.

'Easy decision' for newest Phil

Good things come to those who wait.

The Phillies tried to add Jim Thome to their roster last August, but Cleveland claimed the slugger off waivers. A few months later, Thome was sitting at Citizens Bank Park with a new Phillies uniform. The team signed the first baseman to a one-year deal during the weekend worth a reported $1.25 million.

"It's kind of surreal, to be honest, to be sitting here with the team they have and what they've done in the National League and in baseball," Thome said Saturday. "It's been fun to watch them from the other side and now it's even better to sit 96 Home runs for Thome in a Phillies uniform. He played three seasons here (2003-05).

here and be a part of it."

Thome's main role will be as a potent left-handed bat off the bench. However, the Phillies might need to plug him in at first base, if Ryan Howard isn't fully recovered from offseason ankle surgery. Thome hasn't played a full inning at the position since 2007.

"I looked in the mirror and said, 'OK, I haven't played first base, but also I like the challenge of preparing over the winter to get ready for it,'" Thome said.

► Van Riemsdyk was one of eight Flyers to score.

Orange and Black clicking after record-setting night

► Flyers rout Columbus after five-goal first ► Eight different players hit the score sheet ► Rookies making huge impact early ► Up next, Tampa

It's only happened four other times in franchise history. Make it five.

Eight different Flyers scored in Saturday night's 9-2 rout of Columbus. The players — James van Riemsdyk, Jaromir Jagr, Claude Giroux, Max Talbot, Jakub Voracek, Sean Couturier, Wayne Simmonds, Matt Carle — became the first group to do it in almost 30 years.

The Orange and Black put five goals on the board in the first period, forcing Columbus goalie Steve Mason to the showers.

"Things just seemed to be clicking out there," Van Riemsdyk said. "I don't know, we were making good passes up and down the ice and making smart plays with the puck. When you do that it makes the game look a lot easier out there."

The rookies are making a huge impact, too. They have combined for 25 points in the first 14 games. Couturier, the player the Flyers selected with the draft pick they acquired in the Jeff Carter deal, has five goals after scoring twice on Saturday.

"The whole team stepped up and brought their A-game," Couturier said. ● METRO

Congress looks to lock in transport funding

Spending on highway, bridge and transit would be kept at current levels plus inflation for two years under a bipartisan proposal by a Senate panel.

The legislation, described in an e-mailed statement from the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee last night, doesn't say how to fill the $12 billion gap between revenue from the 18.4 cents-per-gallon U.S. gasoline tax, which raises money for these programs, and the amount needed to maintain spending over that period.

The committee is scheduled to consider the bill on Nov. 9. U.S. Rep. John Mica, chairman of the House Transportation Committee, has said he wants to propose a bill that keeps spending at current levels for six years. BLOOMBERG

Floods add to 'unlucky' year for Toyota, Honda

► Another setback for embattled automakers after flooding shuts down production plants ► Follows earthquake, tsunami earlier this year

Plans by Toyota and Honda to run factories overtime to recoup production lost to parts shortages caused by Japan's earthquake may be delayed until early 2012 because of flooding in Thailand.

Toyota, Asia's biggest carmaker, is scaling back output in Japan for a third week and suspended overtime in North America for a second week as disruptions from the floods spread. Honda is temporarily eliminating overtime and running North American plants at half capacity until next week as Japan's third-largest automaker assesses its inventory.

"For both Toyota and Honda, they really won't be able to expand production as planned until the first quarter of 2012," said Tracy Handler, a Troy, Mich.-based analyst with IHS Automotive. "They've certainly been really unlucky this year."

Thailand's floods are the biggest auto industry disruption since the March 11 earthquake and tsunami in Japan, which cut vehicle abandon its earnings forecasts. Plants in Thailand may be halted until December, according to the Federation of Thai Industries' automotive club.

Toyota, scheduled to report financial results next week, said it hasn't decided on its production plans from Nov. 14 onward as it still assesses the situation.

"The risk for both Honda and Toyota is the longer this drags on and the longer they have shortages, the more difficult the comeback is, and, the longer the comeback is," said auto industry forecaster Jeff Schuster of LMC Automotive. "Given how much more competitive the industry has become, they may have to spend more in incentives, for example, to win back buyers." BLOOMBERG

Already got the car? Time for superbike

- Motorists can get excited for self-propelled two-wheels, it's all right
- And the price tag can suit those with high hopes for slick, fast ride

Of all the vehicles I've tested this year, from Lamborghinis to electric cars, the one I'm most obsessed with is a bicycle.

A $3,200, carbon-fiber Cannondale road bike to be exact. We're all good drivers, and we all know how to ride a bike, right? Not so fast. Similarities between cycling and driving sportscars were quickly apparent. You've got to pick the right car or bike for you, then learn to properly use it. I'm a runner, so my fitness level was good. Bike handling skills were another thing altogether.

I'd signed up for the 52-mile Ramapo Rally in Mahwah, N.J. It wasn't a race, but it would be competitive. I had visions of knocking everybody over.

Cannondale Bicycle Corp., which was acquired in 2008 by Dorel Industries Inc., has its headquarters in Bethel, Conn., so I reached out. Michael De Leon, senior public relations manager, invited me on an employee group ride. Cannondale is the kind of place where employee bikes outnumber cars, and lunchtime rides are expected. De Leon introduced me to Murray Washburn, the technical marketing manager, who's a bit of a bike whisperer. Washburn made me practice basics like emergency braking. De Leon and I started our rally in hard rain. I was feeling strong, especially on the hills. It was just like driving on a racetrack, inches off another Porsche's bumper. Exhilarating. I loved cycling.

Then, on the last big hill, my energy buckled. My legs slowed and I sucked wind and the group slowly pulled away. In biking parlance, I'd been "dropped."

"You were really strong," De Leon said when I finished. "You just need to learn to pace." Pace to retain power? One thing I never had to worry about while driving a Porsche.

What's in the bike

Road bikes run into five figures and walking into a bike shop is intimidating.

If a steel-body road bike was a Ford Mustang and a $20,000-plus Eddy Merckx was a Ferrari, I was looking for a Cadillac CTS-V. An emphasis on smart design and nimble power, but without the European markup. I was pointed to a carbon-fiber Cannondale Synapse, from $1,800 up to $6,400. Weighing 16.5 pounds with rear suspension, it was quick but not twitchy.

Looked cool, too.

► Welcome to the Bonneville Salt Flats, home to record-breaking daredevils ► Motorists take their machines here to blur across desert at more than 600 mph

Where motor speed meets salt

I recently drove on Utah's Bonneville Salt Flats, famous for records of more than 600 miles per hour. My top speed was 122.

Let me repeat: 122 rather paltry miles per hour, driving a slightly modified Suzuki Kizashi sedan. I've gone faster uphill in an old pickup truck.

It was a lesson. Nothing goes according to plan in amateur racing, and the salt flats can be a cruel place. Even so, I had an uproariously good time.

How could I not? I was surrounded by homebuilt machines created with the singular purpose of blurring across the desert at 200, 300 and 400 miles an hour.

Speed demons have been making pilgrimages to Bonneville since the early 1900s, when "Terrible" Teddy Tezlaff drove an open-cockpit car 141.7 mph. By the 1960s, jet-powered machines that look like ground-skimming rocket ships were breaking 600.

It's the ultimate "race-what-you-brung" ethos. With the variety of classes, world records are made and broken every year.

When I wasn't not going 130, I spent my time gawking at the array of vehicles. I've never experienced such a dazzlingly diverse group of crazy machines, some impossibly long and low, with massive stabilizing fins on the back. Buck Rodgers, your car is ready.

Others look like old-school hot rods. Then there were the motorcycles. How does one drive over 200 mph on two wheels? A guy named Mark DeLuca would run his bike that day at 237.6 mph.

For pure shock and awe, however, my favorite was the Joint Venture diesel truck. A "highly modified" 1997 Freightliner originally designed to pull a trailer, this semi has more than 4,000 hp and rear tires from a Boeing 737. Monstrous doesn't begin to describe it.

JASON H. HARPER/BLOOMBERG

Salt flats where?

The former lake is located off Interstate 80 along the Utah and Nevada border. The vast expanse has no trees or shelter, but is partially covered by a layer of naturally-occurring salt. The surface on the salt is hard and flat. There are miles to reach extreme speeds and — more importantly — slow back down with the aid of rear parachutes.

The area is public land, so anyone can enter official events like Speed Week or World of Speed and drive most anything, as long as the vehicle passes safety inspections. The list of vehicles includes everything from motorcycles with turbine engines to 45-mph barstools. Yes, barstools.
